

hem as independent in a peculiar point of view than their brothers, that they are as much called to labor for the elevation and improvement of mankind as the other sex. She said the first woman she had read of in modern times who had written a book on Woman's Rights was Mary Wollstonecraft. Some what later she wrote a book on Woman's Responsibility. This is what we need to pass from the consideration of some of these responsibilities. We need to impress on our daughters these responsibilities, and educate them to meet and fulfill them.

She pitied the poor man who had stuck behind his counter, or in his counting-room, and given his whole mind to dollars and cents until the multiplication tables became his creed, in order to support a family of daughters and a wife in genteel idleness. It is an easy thing to be lazy—a comfortable feeling to be idle; but it will never do for the honest and intelligent man to give up secure true happiness.

She used to think that women should open shops and do business, and enter more largely into the various industrial pursuits now monopolized by men, instead of all becoming seamstresses. Do some of you say, "We shrink from the responsibility?"—"We are not competent!" Are these your reasons? Then start for your reasons, until you can wake up to your interest, position and duties.

"I have no time to go into the subject now."

Miss FOSTER's remarks were received with warm applause.

Mr. MARCUS SPRING, of Brooklyn, N. Y., said: "I have long believed that remunerative employment would remove most of the wrongs that Woman suffers. I was therefore rejoiced to learn, as I have lately done from England, of a new invention by a woman whose name is Wallace, and who has descended from William Wallace, the bids fair to open a new and profitable field of employment to Women. She has invented a decorative art in glass, specimens of which have been placed in the window exhibition at London. She has also obtained a patent of some of her work to Prussia, and who has written a letter expressing the highest commendation of it. It has been frequently noticed by the British press. Miss Fox, a daughter of the Member of Parliament of that name, who took lessons in the fine arts at Munich, has acquired this new art, and proposes to give lessons in it gratuitously for the benefit of her sisters who may desire to make it a profession. Mrs. Spring closed her remarks by saying that the week for which she had been engaged was called. She hoped we might realize the blessedness of "the good time coming." May the cloud by day and pillar of smoke by night conduct you safely to the promised land.

Miss ANTOINETTE L. BROWN again addressed the Convention on the sphere of Woman in a clear and argumentative speech, and explained those passages in St. Paul's writings which were supposed to conflict with the doctrine of Woman's rights. She showed very satisfactorily that St. Paul has been misrepresented on this subject. But I am obliged to myself to repay a close, mentioning only the few brief speeches with which the last session of the Convention was concluded.

Mrs. ERNESTINE L. ROSE made a few remarks showing that woman's duties grow out of her rights.

WENDELL PHILLIPS again read the resolutions before the Convention, which were unanimously adopted. In addition to the first series, from the pen of Mr. Phillips, the following by Mrs. Rose were adopted:

Whereas, According to the Declaration of Independence, all men are created free and equal, and endowed with inalienable rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, therefore—

Resolved, That we protest against the injustice done to Woman, by depriving her of that liberty and equality which alone can promote happiness, as contrary alike to all principles of humanity, and the Declaration of Independence.

Whereas, According to the Fathers of this Republic, taxation without representation is tyranny; and

Whereas, The property of Woman is taxed the same as that of Men, therefore—

Resolved, That it is an act of the greatest tyranny and usurpation to deprive her of rights of being represented—of participating in the formation of the laws, and enjoying all the advantages and privileges equal with man.

Also the following from Mrs. ELIZABETH STANTON, of New-York State:

Resolved, That it is the duty of the women of our country to study enough of the abstruse sciences of government, to inform us of those boundaries of her own power, that man no longer compelled to keep her informed of this great fact.

Resolved, That Women must set out a new order of employment, to fit her for her virtues and independence, and to meet the needs of the world; but that every law, every effort, is interested in this reform, so as speedily as possible, some legitimate way of getting money. Work is worship. Go, get you gold by honest toil!

The Reports of the Committee on Industrial Averages, of the Committee on Social Relations, and the Committee on Education, were all unanimously adopted.

Mr. PHILLIPS, Chairman of the Committee on the Civil and Political Rights of Women, made an excuse for not offering a report on that subject, alleging the want of time to have it in readiness for the Convention; but it will be ready for the pamphlet of proceedings, and will be included.

LUCRETIA MOTT, of Philadelphia, and ELIZABETH BLACKWELL, of New-York, were appointed a Committee to correspond with Jeanne Derouet and Pauline Roland, of Paris, and express to them the interest of this Convention in the position of France.

Mrs. EMMA R. COKE gave the validating address, and the Convention adjourned sine die.
